

The Global Photographer

The Photography and thoughts of Andy Biggs from the field

Tue 23
Oct 2007

Wonpro universal detachable power strips

Posted by Andy Biggs under News , Photo Gear & Reviews

Archived Entry

- Post Date :
- Tuesday, Oct 23rd, 2007 at 4:15 pm
- Category :
- News and Photo Gear & Reviews
- Do More :
- You can leave a response, or
trackback from your own site.

I have found a wonderful product for photographers that travel overseas. I reviewed the Road Warrior adaptor last year, and while a wonderful product, one still needs some sort of surge protection for all of your devices that you are plugging in. On my last safari, I took along a Wonpro power strip with 5 outlets. What makes this power strip different from all others? Check this out:

- ✦ The system is modular: you select the number of outlets, and also the type and length of power cord. I chose a 5-outlet model and a 6.5-foot cord with a UK plug on the end. You can purchase additional power cords to suit the location you are going to. Need European? US? Just take off one cord and replace it with something else.
- ⌚ The outlets are universal. You can plug anything into the power strip. UK? US? European? Japan? You bet. All on the same strip.
- ⌚ The outlets are 2 inches apart. This allows you some additional room for those huge bricks that some camera chargers have.

Plus

Or

Or

Or

Or

Or

Why is this a cool product? Instead of taking along a US power strip that is rated for 110v, I now have a power strip that is rated for 240V, accepts any plug type, can be ordered with 3, 5 or 6 outlets, has room for large bricks, and has detachable cords on the end. So I can have a UK cord when I am in Tanzania, a US cord when I am at home, and some other cord when I need it.

Highly recommended. If I had to purchase another one, I would go ahead and get the 6-outlet version, as there is only 2 ounces of weight difference between the 5-outlet and 6-outlet.

Wonpro Power Strips

Leave a Reply

You must be logged in to post a comment.

All material ©2000-2007 Andy Biggs; all rights reserved